

Expired listing call sheet

Three openers to practice before your next calling session.

Use these as conversation prompts, not a teleprompter. Replace every placeholder with an accurate detail. These scripts do not establish permission to call: check the applicable rules, respect refusals and use the full guide's calling-rules section.

First 30 seconds

Introduce yourself and your brokerage. Name the street and why you are calling. Acknowledge the other calls. Ask one question, then listen.

1 / Day-one expired

"Hi, is this {First Name}? {First Name}, it's {Your Name} with {Brokerage}, and I'm guessing I'm not the first agent to call today. I'm calling about {Street}. I'm not going to pitch you over the phone. One question: are you still planning to move, or has that changed?"

2 / Aged expired: 30–90 days

"Hi {First Name}, {Your Name} with {Brokerage}. Your listing on {Street} came off back in {Month}, which is honestly why I'm calling. The rush of agent calls is long over and I figured you'd finally have some quiet. Are you still hoping to sell, or did you decide to stay put?"

3 / Diagnostic conversation

"Can I ask a few quick things so I'm not guessing? Roughly how many showings did you get over the whole listing? ... What were people saying afterward, if the feedback got passed along? ... Did you adjust the price at any point? ... And how were the photos handled, a photographer, or a phone?"

Four common objections

Practice the response; do not promise anything you cannot deliver.

I'm re-listing with my same agent.

"That's good to hear, honestly, a lot of people wouldn't. What are the two of you changing this time? Because if it's the same plan at a different price, that's worth pushing on before you sign again."

We're taking it off the market for now.

"Makes sense, stepping back is sometimes the right call. Is it off for good, or off until something changes? Those are two different things, and I don't want to bother you if you're genuinely done."

What would you do differently?

"I'll be specific in a second, but I want to answer the right question, what do you think went wrong? I'd rather solve your actual problem than list three things that might not apply."

Your commission is too high. / Will you cut your commission?

"Fair question, and I'd rather talk about it now than at the kitchen table. Before I give you a number, can I ask what you netted on paper last time, at the price you were listed? Because the fee only matters if the house sells, and last time it didn't."
